Testimonials

Hi, I'm AP, and I had the incredible opportunity to work with The Red Pen for my applications. Thanks to their expert guidance, I'm beyond thrilled to have been accepted at Duke, Cornell, London School of Economics, and NYU. I couldn't be more excited to embark on this new chapter of my life in the USA!

From the very beginning, The Red Pen played a crucial role in shaping my journey. I was keen on pursuing my master's in the USA but had no clue where to begin. My counselor was my guiding light—helping me navigate the overwhelming process of selecting colleges, weighing pros and cons, and tailoring every decision to my unique goals and circumstances. The college shortlisting process was daunting, but with Tripti's expert advice, we meticulously broke it down and made informed choices.

Once we had my college list locked in, the real work began—crafting applications that stood out. From brainstorming compelling essays to refining my resume down to the last detail, she was there for me at every step. Whether it was structuring my applications, advising on research paper publications, or simply answering my endless questions, her support made this otherwise nerve-wracking process so much more manageable.

One of the most defining moments for me was working on my essays with their content expert. We started with just my story, and through countless discussions, he helped me refine it into a powerful, authentic narrative. His ability to pull out key moments from my journey and shape them into a compelling essay made all the difference.

Looking back, I can confidently say that The Red Pen was instrumental in my success. From the first step of choosing colleges to making the final decision, their team was with me every step of the way.

I highly recommend The Red Pen to anyone looking for personalized, hands-on support in their study abroad journey. It truly made all the difference for me, and I'm sure it will for you too!

I am very thankful to the team at The Red Pen for guiding my son through his graduate school applications and helping him secure admission to some strong programs for his masters. Due to their support, he is now in a position to choose between great options in both the US and UK. Like most 21 year olds, my son didn't want his parents involved in his application journey; knowing that the expert counseelors of The Red Pen Postgraduate team were always there to answer his questions and advise him on how to progress, was a huge weight off my shoulders. Despite him signing on with The Red Pen very late, they went above and beyond to ensure he submitted high quality applications by the deadlines. I have to also thank them for being very flexible and accommodating in fixing meetings since my son is based in the US; they didn't let time difference come in the way of the process. Special thanks to Tripti Singh, too, for helping him gain clarity on the way forward right at the start and for always being there. Choosing The Red Pen was the best decision we could have made for my son's graduate school admissions!

Hi, I'm HK, and I worked with The Red Pen for my applications. Thanks to their guidance, I'm thrilled to say I was accepted at JHU, NYU, UCSD, and UIUC. I couldn't be more excited to start this new chapter of my life in NY.

I was initially overwhelmed by the application process, unsure of where to begin and how to structure my applications to schools in the U.S. With so many great programs available, I needed clarity on selecting the right ones and crafting strong, compelling applications. Working with The Red Pen made the process much smoother. My consultant was always available to guide me through everything—from shortlisting schools based on my goals to brainstorming essays, refining my personal statement, and preparing for interviews. The structured approach and constant feedback gave me the confidence to put forward my best application.

A big moment for me was when my consultant helped me craft an essay that truly reflected my personal journey, highlighting my experiences and aspirations in a way that felt authentic and compelling. That moment was a turning point—it made me feel confident about my story and how it aligned with my dream schools. This really made a difference in how confident I felt about my application.

I highly recommend The Red Pen to anyone looking for personalized support with their study abroad journey. It made all the difference for me, and I'm sure it will for you too.

Hi, I recently worked with The Red Pen on my graduate school applications. I was initially unsure about where to begin and how to structure my applications to schools in the US and UK. I was also running out of time before application deadlines, and needed a lot of guidance. Working with The Red Pen made the process much smoother. My consultant was always available to guide me through everything—from researching programs to helping edit my resume, she gave me her full support. I did not have enough time to study for the GRE, so I needed to find programs that were test optional. She made a personalised list for me based on these criteria which was extremely helpful. I also had great help from the content specialist on my essays. She held brainstorming sessions with me, supported my ideas, and helped me navigate the dense statement of academic purpose. Thanks to their guidance, I was able to submit a great application. I highly recommend The Red Pen to anyone looking for personalised support with their study abroad journey. It made all the difference for me, and I'm sure it will for you too.

Hi, I am SS, and I worked with The Red Pen for my applications. Thanks to their guidance, I am excited to share that I have been admitted to the London School of Economics. I could not be more excited to start this new chapter of my life in London.

I first met Ms. Tripti for an online session during my second year of undergrad. From the very first counselling session, Tripti made me feel heard, understood, and most importantly, supported. She took the time to listen to my goals, understand my aspirations, and provide tailored advice that was in line with my strengths and interests. Her honest approach and thoughtful insights helped me make decisions that shaped my academic and career path. When I graduated and was preparing to take the leap into studying abroad, an expert counsellor took over my case. They were more than just a counsellor to me – they became a mentor, a guide, and most importantly, a friend. As soon as I began the application process, I knew I was in the best hands. They worked tirelessly on refining my Statement of Purpose (SOP) and made sure it was polished and compelling. They were not just focused on making the documents look good on paper, but ensured the documents reflected my true personality, aspirations, and potential. Every time I sent them my drafts, they returned them with insightful feedback and suggestions that elevated my writing to the next level. I genuinely believe my successful applications are a direct result of their expertise and dedication. They were there for me during moments of doubt and uncertainty, listening to my concerns, and offering reassuring words that kept me focused on my goals. It was their emotional support, combined with her professional guidance, that made all the difference.

What I appreciate the most about The Red Pen is their personalised approach. Both Tripti and my counsellor genuinely cared about my success and worked hard to make sure I was on the right path. I never felt like I was just another case to them, but rather someone who had their full attention, time, and expertise. This made all the difference in my study abroad journey, and I cannot thank them enough for it.

If you are looking for someone to guide you through the maze of study abroad applications, I could not recommend The Red Pen enough. Based on my experience, I can confidently say that Ms. Tripti and the postgraduate team are the perfect people for the job. I am forever grateful for their unwavering support and encouragement.
